The Defense Department celebrates the military child each year during the month of April. There are more than 1.6 million children who face unique challenges as their parents serve our country. Military families move on average every 2 to 3 years, presenting their children with frequent changes in schools, friendships and support networks. The Military Interstate Compact Commission has designated Wednesday, April 23rd and a day to wear purple to honor our military children, but various entities choose to wear purple on different days in April. Any day in April is a good day to Purple Up!

Eight cadets each from Duke and UNC participated in this annual event to deliver the game ball prior to the Duke-UNC basketball game. Post 6 provided Gatorade, water, bananas, apples and oranges. Legion member Nate Mitchell provided State Trooper escort the whole way. He said his car had never driven that far that slowly.

On Saturday, March 22nd, the American Legion Auxiliary enjoyed a social get together over a pot-luck brunch to enjoy casual camaraderie and discuss future activities.
